JUST FOR KICKS: CIRI DESCENDANT BREAKS TWO WORLD RECORDS AT NYO

At 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 24, after a day of activity at the 44th annual Native Youth Olympic Games (NYO), CIRI descendant Autumn Ridley was just warming up. That afternoon, she'd already placed third in the Kneel Jump, and now, as the first day of competition drew to a close with its final event, Autumn had one thing on her mind: breaking a world record.

"I didn't really care about winning," says Autumn, who in 2012 set her first world record in the girls' Alaskan High Kick, which requires an athlete to balance on one hand while launching one foot into the air to kick a suspended ball, then land on the kicking foot. "I'm already the record-holder, so I just really wanted that new record. I knew I was going to kick it. I just knew."

Autumn's confidence was rewarded when she shattered her previous record by kicking at a height of 83 inches. Not satisfied with simply competing with herself, she went on the next day to break a 25-year-old world record by kicking a 79-inch height in the Two-Foot High Kick.

"It was a long journey," she says of her achievement. "I was really proud and honored, and it was a huge relief because I've been trying really hard to have a season like this. I kept telling myself, 'Dream big, Autumn.'"

More than 500 students from across the state dreamed big at this year's NYO, an event organized

ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS

Please plan for temporarily altered traffic patterns downtown

Saturday, June 7
Dena'ina Civic and Convention Center
600 West Seventh Avenue, Anchorage
Registration: 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

THERE ARE TWO WAYS TO RSVP

ONLINE www.ciri.com/RSVP
CALL (907) 263-5191 or (800) 764-2474 and select option 5.

While it is not necessary to RSVP for the Annual Meeting, it helps us to ensure that there is sufficient amount of food.

TEMPORARILY ALTERED TRAFFIC PATTERNS

Please note, the Alaska Run for Women, which takes place in downtown Anchorage, is also scheduled for June 7. With more than 6,000 participants in the 2013 Run, this year, the city plans to close 16th Avenue between A Street and Gambell, and the intersection of Cordova and 15th Avenue, at 7 a.m. until the end of the event. Throughout the day, there will also be brief closures in other downtown areas to allow participants to pass. This will affect traffic patterns; please plan accordingly. To learn more and to view the Alaska Run for Women course map, visit www.akrww.org.

PARKING

Parking is available downtown near the Dena'ina Civic and Convention Center. On-street meters are free during the weekend and certain parking garages are open to the public, including the 7th and G Street Garage (627 H St.) and the Linn Pacillo Parking Garage (440 B St., weekends only).

To view a map of downtown parking facilities, visit http://www.anchoragedowntown.org/pdf/parking_map.pdf.

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

Sophie Minich, CIRI president and chief executive officer

It was great to be back in Kenai last month for the Kenai Shareholder Information Meeting. I was happy to see so many of you come out to learn about CIRI's business and to share your ideas for how to continue to make CIRI a successful company.

While in Kenai, it was gratifying to hear about the progress of the new Dena'ina Wellness Center, a project two years in the making that is meant to address all dimensions of wellness for Alaska Native and American Indian people on the Kenai Peninsula. With the grand opening slated for next month, the building looks extraordinary, and CIRI is proud to have played a part in supporting this project.

The Dena'ina Wellness Center, designed and constructed by the Kenaitze Indian Tribe, was one of three projects nationwide to receive the highly competitive Indian Health Service Joint Venture award. The program will provide funding for the Wellness Center for a minimum of 20 years. This is a fantastic achievement for the Kenaitze Indian Tribe, who will see the end result of years of hard work and planning as the Wellness Center opens its doors in June. And this "end" is only the beginning of many years of service to the people of the Kenai area.

People are what make any organization great, and I'm thrilled to report that the employees of both CIRI and CIRI Alaska Tourism Corporation (CATC) recently voted the companies the #7 and #1 best places to work in Alaska, respectively. The Alaska Journal of Commerce conducted the survey and recently published the results. The survey allowed employees to anonymously answer detailed questions that measured employee satisfaction.

That CIRI companies took not one but two spots on the list means both CIRI and CATC employees believe in the companies they work for. CATC not only showcases Alaska's natural wonders but allows

HIGHLIGHTS PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

- The 2014 CIRI Annual Meeting is scheduled for June 7 at the Dena'ina Civic and Convention Center in Anchorage.
- The Dena'ina Wellness Center in Kenai will host a grand opening ceremony on June 12.
- CIRI and CIRI Alaska Tourism Corp. were recently voted the #7 and #1 best places to work in Alaska, respectively.

visitors to our state to appreciate our people and the relationship between our traditions and the natural world. CATC is also an employer of many CIRI shareholders and descendants, and a strong contributor to CIRI's bottom line.

At CIRI, the commitment and enthusiasm of our employees – many of whom are CIRI shareholders, descendants, family members and other Alaska Native individuals – is an important ingredient of our success. Companies achieve better results when its employees want to go to work, embrace challenges and strive for greatness. While the accolades are fun, the real reward of being named one of Alaska's best places to work is the recognition that CIRI is able to attract and retain the diverse expertise among our employees that has allowed CIRI to grow. With the company's goal sharply focused on growing shareholders' equity to enable larger shareholder dividends, we need a committed and enthusiastic team working together to make that possible.

Finally, as a reminder, the 2014 CIRI Annual Meeting is scheduled for June 7 at the Dena'ina Civic and Convention Center in Anchorage. If you are in the Anchorage area, I hope you can join us. More information about the annual meeting can be found on the CIRI website.

"NATIVE VOICES" TRAVELING EXHIBITION Visits Anchorage June thru November

A traveling exhibition shaped by Alaska Native health care leaders and culture bearers is coming to Anchorage in June. "Native Voices: Native Peoples' Concepts of Health and Illness" was developed and produced by the National Library of Medicine to share how Native health and culture intertwine with contemporary medicine.

Visitors to the exhibition in Anchorage will find six kiosks loaded with 150 video interviews featuring Elders, healers and others sharing stories about their cultures and practice of medicine. The videos are searchable by key words by interviewee name and by five major themes: Individual, Community, Tradition, Healing and Nature. For more information, visit www.southcentralfoundation.com.

For those who are unable to travel to Anchorage to see the exhibition in person, a free iPad app provides a virtual experience.

To download the free app on iTunes:

1. Go to bit.ly/NativeVoicesExhibition
2. Click on the blue "View in iTunes" button beneath the app logo, and follow instructions.

› In this exhibition you will hear the voices of Native American, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian individuals as they tell their stories and express their ideas about health and illness. Above, Agnes Cope, Native Hawaiian.

Trinity Standifer Spirit of Youth Award Recipient

CIRI descendant Trinity Standifer, of Tyonek, has a superpower. She can't see through walls or fly without the aid of an airplane – but she can look at any situation and know exactly how to make it better.

“Watching my younger brothers and sisters definitely inspired me to take care of other kids.”

– TRINITY STANDIFER

“I’ve never yet heard her say, ‘I can’t make this happen,’” says Bonnie Pierce, campus family support manager for Project GRAD, a nonprofit school improvement program. “Trinity puts programs together; she’ll say, ‘Let’s have a basketball team,’ and then she’ll figure out what it will take, and she makes it happen.”

That can-do attitude is one reason Pierce nominated Trinity for a Spirit of Youth Award in the service to children category. The award is designed to recognize and promote youth involvement in communities across Alaska. Last month, Trinity visited Anchorage to receive the award at the Spirit of Youth ceremony – where she was surprised to find she’d been honored with a second award.

“The ceremony was awesome anyway, and then the president’s award, too – that was a huge surprise,” says Trinity, who will receive a certificate from President Obama for the Presidential Service Award.

Typically, though, Trinity’s focus wasn’t on herself during the ceremony: “I got to listen to really heartening stories that made me cry. It was so amazing to see a bunch of kids do great work and be recognized for it.”

Even as a third-grader, Trinity had a gift for knowing exactly how to help others. She first caught Pierce’s eye when she stayed after school to help a janitor finish vacuuming.

Says Pierce, “All the maintenance people at the school were Elders from the village. Trinity recognized not only that she should be taking care of her school, but as a young person she also understood that she should be honoring her Elders.”

As an upperclassman at the K-12 Tebughna School, Trinity takes a leadership role, coaching and competing in the Native Youth Olympics, tutoring younger students and taking children to open gym at the Boys and Girls Club. She views her time outside of school as one more

CIRI SEEKS 2014 AWARD NOMINATIONS

Shareholder of the Year, Elder of the Year and Youth Recognition Awards

CIRI is currently accepting nominations for the 2014 awards to be presented at the CIRI and The CIRI Foundation Friendship Potlatches this fall.

Since 1989, CIRI has annually bestowed the Shareholder of the Year Award on a shareholder who has demonstrated exemplary dedication to Alaska Native culture, heritage and communities.

CIRI introduced the Elder Shareholder of the Year Award in 2011 to recognize shareholders who have demonstrated exemplary dedication to the above-noted areas through a lifetime of contributions that have benefited Native peoples.

In 2013, the Youth Recognition Award was developed to recognize CIRI shareholders and descendants who are 12 to 17 years of age for superior academic achievements, demonstrated leadership qualities, dedication to Alaska Native culture and heritage, outstanding contributions to community and family and exceptional determination and stamina in overcoming significant life challenges.

Please consider nominating a CIRI shareholder or descendant who you feel deserves recognition relevant to the selected award category. The nomination form is available online at www.ciri.com.

SIGN UP FOR ENEWSLETTERS TO BE ENTERED INTO PRIZE DRAWINGS, 7" KINDLE FIRE HD

The winner of the first quarter eNewsletter drawing was CIRI shareholder Teddy Martin Williams, who recently picked up his new, 7-inch Kindle Fire HD.

Shareholders enrolled in the eNewsletter Program receive interactive versions of the Raven's Circle in lieu of paper newsletters. They receive their CIRI news faster, and CIRI saves on printing, processing and postage costs.

Your email address must be valid to win!

To increase participation, CIRI is conducting quarterly drawings for a 7-inch Kindle Fire HD from the names of all shareholders with a valid email address who are enrolled in the eNewsletter program. Shareholders have three more opportunities to win this year, with drawings conducted for the quarters ending June 30, Sept. 30 and Dec. 31. An email is sent to each winner at the email address specified for receipt of CIRI eNewsletters. If the email address is not valid, another winner will be selected.

Not enrolled in the eNewsletter program? Download an eNewsletter subscription form from the CIRI website at www.ciri.com or call (907) 263-5191 or toll-free at (800) 764-2474. And don't forget, shareholders who receive eNewsletters may always

REAL ESTATE, IT INTERNSHIPS BOOST CAREER PROSPECTS FOR SHAREHOLDERS

Sometimes the hardest part of starting a new career is getting your foot in the door. For Kristofer Franke, a CIRI shareholder, the foot-in-the-door moment came with a CIRI Information Technology (IT) internship. And it threw the door wide open to a full-time IT career.

“What I hoped to gain from my internship was work experience, a way to develop contacts in the industry and a game plan for my new career,” says Franke, CIRI computer and network support specialist. “But what I actually received through the CIRI internship was friends, a great atmosphere, many industry contacts, a mother lode of experience and an eventual job with this great company.”

CIRI is actively growing its internship programs and has an exciting new opportunity for shareholders and descendants interested in the fields of real estate, property development and property management.

The CIRI Real Estate Internship is designed to take participants through the life cycle of a real estate project, from the early stages of conceptualization and project planning, through property acquisition and design, to the final phases of property management and ownership.

Unlike traditional summer internships that introduce participants to one career field through working with a single organization, the CIRI Real Estate Internship will expose interns to the full spectrum of career possibilities with a variety of companies like the CIRI Land Development Company, Pape Dawson

Engineers, RIM Architects, Weldin Construction, Weidner Apartment Homes, Inc. and more. The internship is targeted at shareholders or descendants who have just earned a bachelor’s degree, or who are in their final year of a four-year program.

“This is an exciting opportunity for CIRI shareholders or descendants who want to build a bridge from the knowledge they’ve gained in school to the start of a successful career in real estate or property development,” says Dave Pfeifer, CIRI Vice President, Real Estate.

“Internships like this one really make the difference when employers select from the many candidates who apply for a job,” adds CIRI Senior Director, Human Resources, Debra Ahern. “For CIRI shareholders and descendants, in particular, a CIRI internship can be an opportunity not only to demonstrate your talents to potential employers but to make connections that can turn into an exciting career with a CIRI-affiliated business or partner.”

In the past, CIRI has partnered with First Alaskans Institute to make its internship program a success. In August 2013, CIRI began partnering with Cook Inlet Tribal Council (CITC) and the Alaska Vocational Technical Center (AVTEC) to develop an internship program designed to open career pathways for CIRI shareholders and descendants interested in entering the IT field. “The internship helps by providing a team environment where shareholders can really learn how an IT team works in a business

HIGHLIGHTS INTERNSHIPS

- CIRI is actively growing its internship programs for shareholders and descendants.
- CIRI Information Technology department is currently recruiting for two internship positions.

setting. This internship has been very successful. Three of our interns have been CIRI shareholders or descendants, and all three have earned jobs with CIRI or one of its subsidiaries,” says CIRI Senior IT Director Keith Ziolkowski.

Through this partnership, Bob Crowe became the first CIRI shareholder to participate. Working with CIRI’s IT department prepared Crowe for the 10-month Information Technology Program at AVTEC in Seward. After interning for one summer, Crowe completed the AVTEC program with scholarship assistance from CITC and The CIRI Foundation. This summer, he’s completing his externship with Doyon, after which he’ll be back at Talkeetna Alaskan Lodge, supporting IT operations. Crowe says, “Working with the CIRI team was the best way for me to make a career change.”

CIRI’s IT department currently has one internship available for a shareholder or descendant whose goal is to qualify for the AVTEC program in September, and an additional internship for a shareholder or descendant who already has IT training and is ready to gain practical business experience on an IT team. Interested applicants can contact Keith Ziolkowski at (907) 274-8638 or Eric Watson with CITC at (907) 793-3320 for more information.

by CIRI affiliate Cook Inlet Tribal Council (CITC) to celebrate Alaska’s rich diversity and foster values like teamwork, leadership and cross-cultural respect among Alaska Native and non-native students alike.

“NYO is a cherished event that has a lasting impact on all involved,” says Kelly Hurd, CITC director of development. “Autumn is a great example of how NYO serves as a training ground for tomorrow’s leaders, and she represents exactly why it’s such an honor for CITC to serve as the organizing sponsor for the NYO games. We’re grateful for our sponsors, generous donors and volunteers who invest in our youth.”

Each year, NYO features ten athletic events derived from the games Alaska Native people have used for generations to develop the skills needed to survive day to day. NYO also hosts an opportunities exposition with resources available to help prepare young athletes for future success. This year included a special event celebrating 30 years of CITC’s impact in the community.

For over 44 years, NYO has equipped young people with more than athletic ability. It has, Autumn says, given students like her the tools to succeed in school, and in life.

HIGHLIGHTS JUST FOR KICKS

- 18-year-old CIRI descendant Autumn Ridley of Anchorage set a new world record in the Alaskan High Kick at the 44th annual Native Youth Olympic games.
- Autumn also broke a 25-year-old world record in the Two-Foot High Kick.
- More than 500 students participated in the CITC-sponsored Native Youth Olympic games this year.

“I didn’t think I was going to graduate high school until NYO came along,” she shares. “NYO is my entire life. I’ve learned how to deal with conflict, leadership, sportsmanship, how to cope with my problems. I’m definitely going to graduate, and it’s all because of CITC.” ➤ opportunity to help the people in her village, often babysitting for free to give local parents a break.

“Watching my younger brothers and sisters definitely inspired me to take care of other kids,” says Trinity. “Taking care of them made me realize that it feels good to help other people.”

Project GRAD, says Pierce, is focused on helping students graduate from high school and prepare for college by equipping them with qualities like self-reflection, self-respect and responsibility—things, she says, Trinity had early on. “She’s one who has always asked, ‘How can I positively improve my situation in a way that will also benefit my world, my community?’”

Through the program, students also create a vision of how they’d like their lives to look in the future. Trinity’s vision includes one day living in a warm place, studying law and working for the health and safety of women and children.

For now, she’ll keep helping those around her and looking to her parents, her grandparents and the people with Project GRAD for inspiration. “They’re the people who help me get through the days, who push me to do things even when I feel down.”

Trinity is the daughter of Lindsay Bismark and Judd Standifer. Her grandparents are CIRC shareholders Fred and Betty Bismark and CIRC shareholder Don Standifer Sr. and Eileen Standifer. ☰

HIGHLIGHTS TRINITY STANDIFER

- CIRC descendant Trinity Standifer of Tyonek was honored with a Spirit of Youth Award in April.
- Trinity also won a Presidential Service Award and will receive recognition from President Obama.

SECOND QUARTER SHAREHOLDER DISTRIBUTIONS

Elders’ Settlement Trust payments

The second quarter CIRC Elders’ Settlement Trust payment of $450 is scheduled for June 13, with the remaining 2014 Elders’ payments scheduled for September 12 and December 12. Original shareholders who are 65 years of age or older and who own at least one share of CIRC stock as of these dates are eligible to receive the $450 payments. For the June distribution, eligible Elders who have their CIRC dividends directly deposited will have their trust payments electronically transmitted to the same account by 6 p.m. Alaska Daylight Time on Friday, June 13. Eligible Elders who do not participate in direct deposit will have their payments mailed in check form on June 13.

Second Quarter Dividend

Consistent with CIRC’s dividend policy, second quarter 2014 dividends in the amount of $8.42 per share will be issued on Monday, June 30. If you own 100 shares of stock, your second quarter dividend will be $842. If you participate in direct deposit, your dividend will be electronically transmitted to your account by 6 p.m. Alaska Daylight Time on June 30. Shareholders who do not participate in direct deposit will have their payments mailed in check form on June 30.

Direct Deposit Deadlines

The deadline for signing up for direct deposit or changing an existing direct deposit instruction is 3:00 p.m. on Monday, June 2, for the June Elders’ Trust distribution, and 3:00 p.m. on Monday, June 16, for the second quarter dividend. Direct deposit forms are available from the Shareholder Relations Department, and may also be printed from www.ciri.com. To cancel direct deposit, please submit a signed, written request prior to 3:00 p.m. on June 5 for the June Elders’ Trust distribution, and 3:00 p.m. on June 20 for the second quarter dividend.

Address Changes

A list of shareholders who do not have a current mailing address on record is continually updated and located on the CIRC website.

To ensure receipt of CIRC mail – including dividends – shareholders should immediately notify the Shareholder Relations Department of address changes and should also update the address on file with the U.S. Postal Service. If the address on the CIRC records does not match the address on file with the Postal Service, CIRC mail and dividends may be returned as undeliverable. When this occurs, CIRC must place the shareholder’s records on hold, and any distributions issued in connection with the CIRC shares are held pending receipt of a valid address.

If your address has changed, please send a signed Address Change Form to CIRC and include a current telephone number so CIRC may contact you with any questions. If you fail to notify CIRC of your new address before the deadline, and your check is sent to your old address, CIRC cannot reissue that check to you unless it is either returned to Shareholder Relations or a minimum of 90 days has elapsed. Address Change Forms can be mailed to CIRC at P.O. Box 93330, Anchorage, AK 99509, or faxed to (907) 263-5186. All faxed requests should be followed up as soon as possible with a call to confirm the fax was received.

Online forms and information on changing your address or submitting a mail-forwarding request with the U.S. Postal Service are available on the Postal Service website, and are also available at your local post office.

Tax reminder

As a reminder, CIRC does not withhold taxes from distributions; however, shareholders who anticipate owing tax on their distributions have the option of making quarterly estimated tax payments directly to the IRS. To find out more about applicable federal and state tax requirements or making quarterly estimated tax payments, please consult with a tax advisor or contact the IRS directly. ☰

Kenai Fjords Tours' (KFT) new state-of-the-art catamaran, the M/V Callisto Voyager, is officially on the water. The vessel was launched in Washington, where it went through a series of standard tests before the journey to Seward, Alaska.

General Manager Ron Wille and KFT staff recently took KTUU Channel 2 Reporter Marti Glaser and her "Road Trippin" staff on an adventure aboard the Callisto Voyager in Seward, Alaska. Visit www.ktuu.com/morning-show/roadtrip to watch the videos that were shown on Anchorage's Channel 2 News on Friday, May 2.

KFT is a subsidiary of CIRI Alaska Tourism Corp. (CATC), a wholly owned CIRI subsidiary. CATC provides a 30 percent shareholder discount to CIRI shareholders and their immediate family members for stays at the Talkeetna Alaskan Lodge, Seward Windsong Lodge and Kenai Fjords Wilderness Lodge, as well as for excursions with Kenai Fjords Tours. NORTH WIND SPONSORSHIP PROVIDES OPPORTUNITY TO LEARN ABOUT ENERGY POLICY

On March 21, CIRI subsidiary North Wind Group sponsored the Partnership for Science and Technology's (PST) "Up n Atom" Breakfast at the Idaho National Laboratory (INL).

The meeting was an important opportunity for PST members to receive information about energy policy for the nation and discuss the role of the national laboratory in that policy.

North Wind, which is based in Idaho Falls, Idaho, is a wholly owned subsidiary of CIRI that provides a broad spectrum of engineering, environmental remediation and construction services for government and private projects including with INL.

Four U.S. Senators, including Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-Alaska), presented at the meeting. These four senators represent significant influence in the areas of energy, environment, natural resources, Indian affairs and small business. Following the meeting, the Senators spent the rest of the day touring the national laboratory.

Mike Hart, president of PST, said, "PST was proud to partner with our local Alaska Native-owned corporation, North Wind, to welcome Senator Murkowski to Idaho and host this exciting event."
