Windsong Lodge earns top marks International operator picks best hotels in America

Studiosus, an international tour operator, awarded the Seward Windsong Lodge their Studiosus Award 2009 in March 2010. The Windsong Lodge was one of only four hotels in North America to receive the award.

Studiosus selects hotels for the award based on their travelers' evaluations. Studiosus clients rated hotels for atmosphere, comfort, tidiness and cleanliness, breakfast, service and overall satisfaction.

Studiosus is one of Europe's top cultural and educational tour providers, with more than 1,000 routes in more than 100 countries. Studiosus caters primarily to travelers between the ages of 45 and 65 in central Europe, conducting sales through approximately 7,100 travel agencies in Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

The 180-room Seward Windsong Lodge is located in the scenic Resurrection River Valley near Exit Glacier and Kenai Fjords National Park, five minutes north of the harbor in Seward, Alaska. The lodge features a rock fireplace, gift shop, tour desk, Internet station, espresso and snack bar, modern conference and banquet facilities and the Resurrection Roadhouse restaurant.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE	2	CIRI SPOTLIGHT
CENSUS FACTS	2	2009 CIRI ANNUAL REPORT
MISSING SHAREHOLDERS	3

A word from the president By: Margie Brown, CIRI president and CEO

(Excerpts from Letter to Shareholders, CIRI 2009 Annual Report)

Last year I wrote about the effects that economic turmoil had on CIRI's businesses and its 2008 net income and I expressed confidence that we would work through the challenges. While 2009 brought continued challenges, I am pleased to report that CIRI returned to profitability and earned a net profit of $24.5 million, up dramatically from the $22.8 million loss it suffered in 2008. Total shareholders' equity is $635.4 million at year-end 2009, up from $632.0 million in 2008.

In the face of this crisis and changed market conditions we refreshed the Company's strategic plan to pursue acquisition opportunities that would provide strong cash flows in the near- and mid-term timeframe.

At year-end 2008, realizing that selling a portion of CIRI's marketable securities would allow us to rebalance our investment allocations and replace underperforming fund managers, we liquidated a substantial portion of our marketable securities portfolio. By doing so, we gained a significant tax benefit in the form of an income tax refund, which was received in late 2009. We re-entered the stock market in early 2009. These investments gained significant value throughout the year as world financial markets stabilized and recovered.

In the tourism sector, we were not immune to the effects of the sharp business contraction and national recession that took place in late 2008 and 2009. At CIRI Alaska Tourism Corp., we aggressively managed business operations throughout the season to control costs so that it was net cash positive for the year, though not positive on a GAAP net income basis. We remain cautious about the levels of visitation to Alaska in 2010 and are continuing to work on improvements to our marketing program and cost control measures.

Not all that we are working on requires a cautionary note. Ever since I became CIRI's president and chief executive officer, we have focused on energy-related investments, particularly opportunities in Southcentral Alaska where natural gas supplies are dwindling. We are tackling complex projects that, upon successful completion, will be transformational for the Company.

Late in 2009, we cleared and examined the geology of each of the sites where the Fire Island wind project towers will be located, and additional construction work on the island is slated for 2010. In August 2009, we announced CIRI's underground coal gasification (UCG) project after having quietly but comprehensively examined the technology for nearly a year. Our project will be located on CIRI land on the west side of Cook Inlet and will produce syngas from coal, without mining, to fuel a 100-megawatt combined cycle power plant to supply electricity for Southcentral Alaska electricity consumers. Future UCG project phases could upgrade syngas into synthetic natural gas or clean liquid fuels. We are underway in the first of three drilling programs designed to assess the resource and locate a specific project site.

Our refreshed strategic plan guides us to look for new business developments with significant market trends in mind. One market trend we are observing is the widespread interest in "cleantech" businesses that provide knowledge-based products and services that enable sustainable energy development, energy conservation and pollution reduction.

Our Company invested in Codexis, a California-based biotech company that develops technologies that improve the efficiency of energy, pharmaceutical and environmental industries. We also committed capital to Westly Capital Partners Fund L.P. for cleantech investments in such companies as Tesla Motors, the highperformance electric car manufacturer.

I also am pleased to welcome a new business to the CIRI family of companies. In 2009, CIRI acquired North Wind Inc., an environmental management, engineering and construction services company that specializes in cleaning up hazardous materials sites. North Wind brings to us valuable experience in the fields of environmental cleanup and engineering and provides a good platform for growing our government contracting and other minority business enterprise initiatives.

Work proceeded in 2009 with the build-out of our Tikahtnu Commons retail and entertainment center in Anchorage. The new Regal Theaters, including Alaska's only IMAX screen, will open in June 2010. We also are pleased to report that the construction of the Hyatt Place North Stone Oak at Sonterra in San Antonio, Texas, is nearing completion and is scheduled to open in mid-April 2010.

The past year was both challenging and exhilarating. CIRI's new and ongoing business initiatives have positioned our Company prudently to benefit both current and future generations of shareholders. I feel privileged to lead a talented executive team and to work alongside the dedicated CIRI employees throughout the Company. We share a commitment to CIRI and we work hard to ensure that CIRI will continue to benefit shareholders and their descendants for generations to come.

Fun Census Facts Eight great reasons to be counted

Answer the Door

At the end of April, census takers will begin knocking on doors to collect census information from those who did not complete and mail back their 2010 Census form. If you have not already done so, it's not too late to mail it back. If a census taker comes knocking on your door because you did not mail back your census form, please answer your door and allow him or her the opportunity to collect your census data so we achieve a complete count in Alaska.

for the next ten years. We cannot afford to have residents missed in the 2010 Census count.

Ensuring Our Democracy is Fair

The founders of our country created Article 1, Section 2 of the Constitution to ensure that representation in Congress is distributed equally. Our system of government depends on equal representation in Congress, which depends on the census. The United States has conducted a census every ten years since 1790. The 2010 Census is the 23rd census in American history.

Allocating Federal Funds

More than $400 billion in federal funds are distributed every year to states and communities based on census population data. Our community could miss out on receiving our full share of federal dollars if all of our residents are not counted in the 2010 Census.

Each Alaskan Represents $2,500

State and local governments use census data to plan new roads, schools and emergency services. Businesses use the data to develop new economic opportunities. Each Alaskan accounts for $2,500 in federal funding per year

Just 10 Questions

The 2010 Census is the shortest in history with just 10 questions to answer and takes only about 10 minutes to complete the form. The questions are very basic, asking topics such as name, age, race and home ownership.

It's Confidential

All Census Bureau employees take the oath of nondisclosure and are sworn for life to protect the confidentiality of the data. The penalty for unlawful disclosure by a census employee is a fine of up to $250,000 or imprisonment for up to five years, or both.

Mail That Form!

Between $80-$90 million in taxpayer dollars is saved for each 1 percent increase in mail-back response. It's critical that you mail back your census form rather than wait for a census taker to show up on your doorstep. It's safe, easy and important: take ten minutes to complete and mail back that form.

www.2010census.gov

We're hiring! The U.S. Census Bureau is accepting applications for census takers: part-time, temporary employment. Census takers can earn $25.00 per hour plus 50$ per mile reimbursement.

CIRI needs your help locating shareholder addresses

CIRI strives to ensure correspondence, reports, newsletters and dividends reach shareholders in a timely manner. It is important for shareholders to notify CIRI Shareholder Relations and the U.S. Postal Service of all address changes. The following CIRI shareholders do not have a current mailing address on record with CIRI Shareholder Relations and should fill out the change of address form at CIRI's offices, or download it at www.ciri.com/ content/shareholders/change.aspx. You can also write a letter, signed by the shareholder, which includes the new address, telephone number, birth date and social security number.

CIRI Spotlight: Gloria Yates

CIRI shareholder and census partnership specialist urges Natives to be counted

CIRI shareholder Gloria Yates isn't new to U.S. Census Bureau work. In the 2000 decennial census, Gloria worked as a recruiter for census jobs and in field operations supervising census takers. With an education and background in social work, she enjoys her work with the U.S. Census Bureau because it allows her to continue to work for the well-being of the Alaska Native/American Indian community in Southcentral Alaska.

Gloria and her siblings are of Yup'ik descent; their mother, Carrie Andrew, now 81, moved to Anchorage from the village of Tuluksak in the 1960s to work as a nurse's aid at the Alaska Native Medical Center. Their father, the late Jose Ruvalcava, was recruited from Montana to help build the Alaska Railroad. They raised their family in Anchorage and the children are all original enrollees of CIRI.

"My mother has been an inspiration to me and is the reason I've chosen a career working for the betterment of the Native community," Gloria explains. "She taught us to have compassion, kindness and respect for others. Her words of wisdom gave us patience and a spirit of determination, which helps us when we're faced with life's challenges. Her advice and prayers continue to give us a strong foundation of faith and love for others."

As partnership specialist, Gloria works to relay the importance of being counted.

communities, churches, schools, social service organizations, businesses, nonprofit organizations and elected officials," Gloria said. "My role is to relay the census message through presentations, information booths at various events, hosting meetings, participating in conferences and organizing community events. The venue may change but the message remains the same: We need to

Gloria can't overstate the importance of participating in the census. "Participating in the 2010 Census contributes to a bright future for our communities and families. The count will help shape decisions for federal funding for critical social services, neighborhood improvements, transportation, planning, schools, business development, senior services and much more. Census takers will start knocking on doors at the beginning of May to collect census information from those who have not filled out and mailed back their form. If you have not completed your census form, we encourage you to take a few minutes today to respond."

Gloria's prior work experience has positioned her well for census outreach: she's served as shareholder relations coordinator for CIRI, work enhancement case manager and family advocate for Cook Inlet Tribal Council (CITC), and clinical associate for Southcentral Foundation.

"I would like to thank the CITC Board of Directors and CITC President Gloria O'Neill especially for generously donating office space to the U.S. Census Bureau where I am based. CITC's partnership with the Bureau has

Outside work, Gloria is about to celebrate her 26th wedding anniversary with her husband Douglas. Their son, Douglas III, attends the University of Alaska, Anchorage on a scholarship from Southcentral Foundation's RAISE Program.

When not working or spending time with family, Gloria has an impressive resume of volunteer activities with a diverse array of causes including the Warriors Rural Alaska Suicide Prevention Outreach. Another interest dear to her heart is the business she cofounded with husband Douglas, the Douglas Yates Native Gallery. To learn more, visit: www.douglasyates.org

2009 Annual Report

How to read CIRI's financial statements

CIRI recently released its 2009 annual report. This document summarizes the Company's performance last year and contains information that shareholders and interested readers can use to better understand CIRI's business and investments. Annual report financial statements can be difficult to understand. This guide explains key parts of the financial statements that are on pages 20-23 of CIRI's 2009 annual report.

The financial statements include:

• Balance Sheets

CONS

- Statements of Operations
- Statements of Shareholders' Equity and Comprehensive Income
- Statements of Cash Flows

They are accompanied by footnotes that provide additional details about the Company's investments and discuss Company earnings and its financial position at yearend. Management's Discussion and Analysis follows the audited financial statements and gives additional information about the Company's operations and holdings. An independent auditor, KPMG, LLP, audits the financial statements and issues its opinion as to CIRI's conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles.

Revenues and Expenses

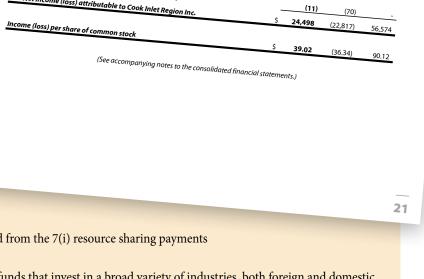

CIRI's revenues and expenses are reported by operating segment:

- Real estate income includes property leases, property management fees and brokerage commissions as well as revenues from the sale of real estate holdings.
- Construction and government services income is CIRI's share of earnings from its 50 percent ownership in two construction and oilfield service companies and from contracts offered by the federal government.
- Telecommunications income is from CIRI's ownership interest in a joint venture with T-Mobile.
- Tourism income is from CIRI's Alaska tourism company and CIRI's interests in out-of-state hospitality properties.
- Natural resources and energy income is primarily from oil and gas royalty revenues and from the 7(i) resource sharing payments received from other ANCSA corporations.
- Private equities income is from investments in general private equity and venture capital funds that invest in a broad variety of industries, both foreign and domestic.

Net income for 2009 was more than $24.5 million.

Income per share of common stock divides the net income by 627,800, the outstanding number of CIRI shares, to report the amount of income earned per share.

Glossary of financial terms

Consolidated Balance Sheets: These reports show what a corporation and its subsidiary companies own (assets) and owe (liabilities) at a certain date. They also show a shareholders' equity.

Asset: Something of value that is owned, including cash and items that are convertible to cash. Examples of assets include receivables (monies owed to the company), inventories (supplies), property and equipment (buildings, land, machinery, etc.).

Net Loss: When total expenses exceed total revenues.

Consolidated Statements of Cash Flows: These reports show the amount of cash received and spent during a fiscal year, including:

- Cash received or spent operating a business.
- Cash received or spent buying and selling assets.

Liability: A company's legal debts or obligations that arise during the course of business operations.

Equity: Total assets less total liabilities equals equity. CIRI's equity belongs to CIRI shareholders.

Consolidated Statements of Operations: These reports show the combined revenues, expenses and net income or net loss of a company.

Revenue: The money made by operating a business or earned from holding an asset.

Expenses: The costs required to generate revenue. For example, fuel to operate construction equipment.

Net Income: When total revenues exceed total expenses.

• Cash borrowed or paid on debt and/or paid to shareholders.

Fiscal Year: Also called a financial year; any yearly period without regard to the calendar year at the end of which a company or organization determines its financial condition. CIRI's fiscal year is Jan. 1 through Dec. 31.

Limited Liability Company (LLC): A LLC is a business organization that combines elements of both partnerships and corporations. It limits the legal risk to its owners to only the amount of their investment.

Liquidity: Cash and current assets sufficient to satisfy the Company's liabilities and commitments as they come due.

Marketable Securities: A general term for stocks, bonds or other investments that can be sold on the open market.
