

RAVEN'S CIRCLE

JANUARY/FEBRUARY 2023 // CIRI NEWSLETTER

The village of Tyonek is located approximately 40 air miles from Anchorage. Prior to VPSO Zach Burns serving the community, Alaska State Troopers had to fly in from Soldotna.

VILLAGE OF TYONEK WELCOMES VPSO

Congratulations to the village of Tyonek! Thanks to a coordinated effort among the Native Village of Tyonek (NVT), Aleutian Pribilof Islands Association (APIA) and the State of Alaska, Tyonek recently welcomed a Village Public Safety Officer (VPSO).

VPSOs are unique to Alaska. Known as “First Responders on the Last Frontier,” they provide rural fire protection, basic law enforcement, search-and-rescue coordination, emergency medical services and safety education in tribal communities throughout the state.

VPSOs are the first to arrive on the scene of safety and medical emergencies when help might otherwise be hours away, ensuring citizens in rural communities receive immediate response without delays caused by weather or distance. They typically come armed with tasers, spray and batons, but no guns.

Located approximately 40 air miles from Anchorage on a bluff overlooking the northwest shore of Cook Inlet, Tyonek is home to approximately 175 residents of primarily Alaska Native descent. It is one of seven villages in the Cook Inlet region.

According to NVT Secretary/Treasurer Janelle Baker, the last time Tyonek had a VPSO was in 2005. “There has been a need for a VPSO for quite some time,” she said. “Except in certain emergency situations, it can take days after a report is made for Alaska State Troopers to arrive in Tyonek.”

Tyonek is not alone. A 2019 Anchorage Daily News and ProPublica investigation found that one in three Alaska communities had no local police protection.

Alaska’s VPSO program is divided into 10 individual programs: APIA, Association of Village Council Presidents, Bristol Bay Native Association, Central Council Tlingit & Haida Indian Tribes of Alaska, Chugachmiut, Copper River Native Association, Kawerak Inc., Kodiak Area Native Association, Northwest Arctic Borough and Tanana Chiefs Conference. The program is paid for by the State of Alaska. Individual programs hire, employ and supervise the VPSOs, as well as manage daily operations and work with the communities receiving VPSO services.

After reaching out to the Alaska Department of Public Safety, NVT’s request for a public safety officer was put before the regional coordinators of the individual programs. APIA—a federally recognized tribal organization that serves tribes and communities in the Aleutian/Pribilof region—stepped in to help NVT hire and manage a VPSO for Tyonek.

“I had a meeting with our president to discuss the possibility of providing and managing an officer outside our region,” APIA Public Safety Coordinator Michael Nemeth said. “He was very receptive to the idea, and we decided that providing public safety in rural Alaska—be it in our region or another region—was important and the right thing to do.”

VPSO Zachary Burns arrived in Tyonek in December 2022. A Montana native, Burns is no stranger to Alaska—an Army Staff Sergeant veteran, he had previously been stationed at Fort Wainwright near Fairbanks.

“I originally heard about the VPSO Program through some Army buddies,” Burns recalled. “They were talking about these law-enforcement officers living in villages, being out there all alone. And my first thought was, that’s crazy! But the more I looked into it, the more I decided it sounded like a really interesting job. What appealed to me was getting to do not only police work, but EMT, fire protection, search and rescue—all the things the little kid in me would have dreamed of doing.”

Burns started out as the very first VPSO intern through the U.S. Department of Defense SkillBridge Program, which connects service members transitioning out of the military with paid time off to receive hands-on training in their chosen fields. He interned with APIA, shadowing VPSOs in the community of False Pass, Alaska. Training took place at the Alaska State Troopers Academy in Sitka.

The VPSO Program is selective. VPSOs undergo training that exceeds that required of tribal and village police officers and must also submit to background checks on par with Alaska State Trooper candidates. “Zach and I spent many hours talking about the program, the specific job duties and my expectations of our officers,” Nemeth said. “His drive, his desire for community and passion for the different duties the job entails made him a great candidate to interview with the NVT Tribal Council.”

Housing is often a barrier to communities looking to install a VPSO. American Rescue Act funds enabled NVT to renovate an existing home for Burns, who called his accommodations “top-notch.”

“NVT treats me very well and they’re very supportive of what I’m doing,” he said. “For me, being a VPSO is about making a positive impact. I’m ingrained with the community here; I know everyone’s name and work with them on an almost personal level. In the entire rest of the country, there’s nothing else like the VPSO Program.”

The issue of lack of law enforcement in Alaska villages has gained traction in recent years. In 2019, the U.S. Department of Justice announced $42 million in grant funding to improve public safety in rural Alaska. Last year, a bill that aims to clarify the statutory mission of VPSOs and the role of the Alaska Department of Public Safety in helping to administer the program passed unanimously through the senate. It added funding to the 2022 budget for another 10 VPSOs and included a $7-per-hour salary increase for officers.

A WORD FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Happy new year to you, our Shareholders and Descendants! As we move into 2023, I am excited for what lies ahead.

This spring, CIRI will hold our first in-person Information Meetings since 2019. While I am grateful for the technology that allowed us to hold these meetings virtually the last three years, there is no substitute for in-person interaction. Our Board of Directors, executive team and CIRI staff look forward to sharing this time together! Please mark your calendar for the following Information Meeting dates and locations:

- Saturday, April 22 in Anchorage.
- Sunday, April 23 in Kenai, Alaska.
- Saturday, May 6 in Puyallup, Wash.

This year's Annual Meeting will be held Saturday, June 3 in Anchorage.

If you cannot attend the meetings in person, a virtual option will be made available to you—more information to come in the months ahead.

As we return to our in-person gatherings—not only reconnecting but sharing important information about the financial health of our corporation—I am reminded that our unity is our strength. Your corporation is committed to sharing ideas, fostering cooperation and finding innovative ways of working with our villages, tribes and family of socially driven enterprises to promote the economic and social well-being of CIRI Shareholders and Descendants.

Throughout the year, in the Raven's Circle and in other CIRI communications, you will read how our villages and tribes are working to instill pride in heritage and improve opportunities for the people and communities they serve. Likewise, the CIRI family of tribally designated organizations and community nonprofits serve the needs of Shareholders, Descendants and other Alaskans, providing education, employment, health care, housing, and other social and cultural enrichment services that reflect traditional Alaska Native values. We are grateful for their service and dedicated to working with them to help all CIRI stakeholders thrive.

Again, I look forward to seeing many of you at our upcoming Information Meetings and Annual Meeting!

Warm regards,

Sophie Minich
CIRI President and CEO

NEW VIDEO: THE CIRI FAMILY OF SOCIALY DRIVEN ENTERPRISES

Since its inception, CIRI has provided financial support and worked with community partners to create and build a family of tribally designated organizations and community nonprofits. BOARD CORNER

A message from CIRI Board Assistant Secretary Katrina (Dolchok) Jacuk

Dear friends in the CIRI community:

After 14 years of service, I have chosen to step aside from the CIRI Board of Directors. It is a decision made with profound gratefulness for the opportunity to have served, coupled with an understanding that one must always lead by example. It has been an incredible honor to serve you in this role. I am especially thankful to those who gave me your trust and steadfast support over the years. Please know I have done my best to fulfill the duties of a Director with integrity and respect and to demonstrate our shared Alaska Native values.

In 2009, I entered this office with the intent of being a leader who listens to all. In my numerous conversations with Shareholders and Descendants over the years, many of you gifted me with your personal stories, details about our Alaska Native history and valuable cultural knowledge. In addition, you specified your concerns and priorities regarding the business of our corporation. Please know, every time I entered the Board room, I carried your information with me. Thank you for helping me become a more effective leader. Along the way, I learned it is essential to bring our shared Native values into our discussions and decision-making.

In 2023, I leave the Board with the awareness that we must create space for new voices and fresh perspectives. We can no longer simply talk about including the next generation in the future of CIRI—the next generation is here, and they are prepared to do the work. It is incumbent on all of us to give them, the second and third wave of Shareholders and Descendants, an opportunity to set a new course for CIRI for the next 50 years.

As an original Shareholder, I have felt the constant presence of CIRI in my life since its inception in 1972. I am fortunate to have been part of its first 50 years, and I am proud of our corporation's many accomplishments. In a way, it feels like I grew up with CIRI. When the initial dividend was issued, I was about 10 years old and promptly bought myself a 10-speed bicycle in red, white and blue. Even though I learned of proxy votes and Board seats early on, I never expected to become more involved with CIRI because I didn't think that was an option available to me. Decades later, upon my acceptance to law school, I used another dividend to purchase a laptop computer. While my interest in the corporation would ebb and flow over the years, I remained a proud CIRI Shareholder who recognized it not only as a secondary source of income, but as a real connection with Alaska and part of my identity as a Native woman. I am forever grateful I was given a chance to interview and earn a seat on the Board of Directors. I sincerely hope young Shareholders and Descendants will envision a future for themselves at CIRI, in a form of service suitable for them.

To be an Alaska Native person is to live in relationship—with creation, the Creator and especially with our community, whether it be a tribe, village or Alaska Native corporation. Without a doubt, my favorite part of this journey has been getting to know our wonderfully diverse community of CIRI Shareholders and Descendants. Thank you for welcoming me into your lives.

As we move into 2023, I thoughtfully ask each of you to set aside time to get involved in the CIRI community. Educate yourself about your corporation. Learn the history of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. Attend Shareholder and Descendant meetings. Read the Annual Report. Apply to serve on the CIRI Participation Committees. Vote your proxy. Speak up. Find a way to participate, whether virtually or in person. We must all make an effort to remain informed about the business of our corporation. We are CIRI and the Cook Inlet region; our opinions and ideas are important. 🦋

CIRI IN THE COMMUNITY

COVEY ACADEMY—COVENANT HOUSE ALASKA

Providing an array of resources and services to help homeless youth on their journey to self-sufficiency, Covey Academy connects young people with housing, job training and community support. But Covey Academy isn't your average transitional-living facility—in addition to 19 onsite housing units, the facility offers vocational training in a variety of industries, including heavy-equipment operation, the culinary arts, and administrative and support services.

A program of Covenant House Alaska (CHA), Covey Academy opened in summer 2022. Partner organizations—such as the Alaska Department of Labor and Workforce Development, Anchorage School District and Nine Star Education and Employment Services—have offices in the building. The goal is to prevent and alleviate homelessness through housing and job training, and foster independence in residents while keeping them connected with services.

Capital for Covey Academy was provided by Cook Inlet Housing Authority (CIHA) through CIRI's allocation of 2021 Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act funds.

Forty-one percent of CHA's youth clients identify as Alaska Native/American Indian. CHA partners with various Alaska Native organizations, including The CIRI Foundation and Cook Inlet Tribal Council, to ensure its programs are culturally appropriate.

"I recently toured Covey Academy and was impressed not only by the facilities themselves, but by the commitment of the staff and residents," said CIRI President and CEO Sophie Minich. "At the ribbon-cutting ceremony in June, the president of Covenant House International described Covey Academy as 'flight school, where young people learn they can soar.' This is a place designed to give young people the skills and support to move toward independence and life as a healthy, productive adult. I am pleased CIRI was able to support the project through our allocation of CARES Act funds and grateful to CHA and CIHA for their vision and execution."

RECIPE

THE ALASKA NATIVE HERITAGE CENTER

Perfect for winter, this cozy soup uses fridge and pantry staples you likely already have on hand. If you do not have moose meat, feel free to substitute beef stew meat.

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 pound moose or beef stew meat
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 4 large carrots
- 4 celery stalks
- 1 onion
- 1 tablespoon minced garlic
- 1 large russet potato
- 6 to 8 cups water
- 1 cup dried elbow macaroni pasta
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 can stewed tomatoes
- 1 packet dry onion soup mix, such as Lipton
- Salt and pepper (to taste)
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- Kimchi or chopped fresh parsley (optional)

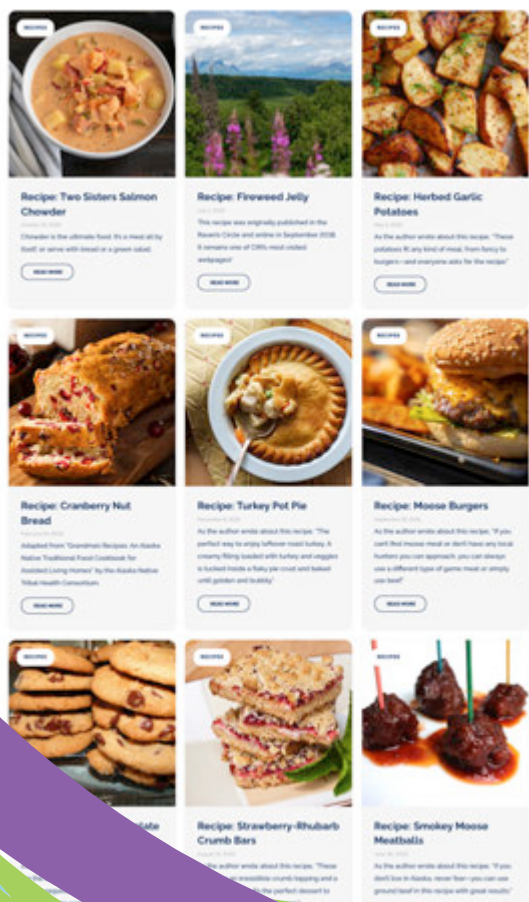

DIRECTIONS:

1. Cut meat and chop vegetables into bite-size pieces. Dab meat dry with paper towels and season with salt and pepper. Set aside.
2. Heat olive oil in a heavy-bottom soup pot. Brown the moose meat, along with the onion, garlic and Worcestershire sauce.
3. Add water and onion soup mix and bring to a boil. Once soup is boiling, add carrots, celery, stewed tomatoes, potato, macaroni and oregano.
4. Reduce heat to a simmer; cook until potatoes are tender and macaroni is al dente.
5. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve soup hot. Top bowls with kimchi or parsley, if desired.

2023 FAREWELL ACCESS PERMITS

APPLY BY FRIDAY, MARCH 31

As in previous years, recreational use permits will be issued for access to portions of the Farewell area for Dall sheep hunting in 2023.

Access permits to CIRI lands near Farewell are awarded through a random drawing. The area, which is accessible by plane, is located approximately 200 miles west of Anchorage. The general public may apply for access; however, CIRI Shareholders and their immediate family members, registered CIRI Descendants and CIRI employees are drawn in a separate priority lottery, ensuring first choice of hunting periods.

Additionally, CIRI is pleased to again make access permits available by lottery for the Unit 19 Youth Hunt. Though available through the same lottery system as the general hunt, these permits are limited to CIRI Shareholders, registered CIRI Descendants and children of CIRI employees.

- Applications will be accepted through Friday, March 31, with the drawing held in early April.
- Access for the Youth Hunt is Aug. 1-5.
- The general season hunting period is Aug. 10 to Sept. 20.

As in past years, hunters may access the area via Veleska Lake to the north or Smith Lake to the south. For conservation purposes, access permits will be issued for up to 10 days, nine nights. Each hunting party (up to four individuals) will be limited to taking two legal rams. All state hunting regulations apply.

For additional details and to complete the online permit application, visit ciri.com/our-lands/permitting. To register as a CIRI descendant, visit ciri.com/descendant-registration.

2022 TAX INFORMATION

2022 CST payments are nontaxable

The quarterly payments issued in 2022 from the CIRI Settlement Trust (CST) Distribution Fund and the CST Elders Fund are nontaxable; thus, tax forms will not be issued, and the payments will not be reported to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS).

Tax status of 2022 CIRI payments

CIRI IRS Forms 1099 for the 2022 tax year were mailed no later than Jan. 31, 2023. Shareholders with portal accounts may access their Forms 1099 at qenek.ciri.com. Tax information remains accessible in Qenek for seven years, allowing Shareholders to easily view and print their forms, if desired.

2022 tax forms will reflect all payments made to affected CIRI Shareholders in 2022, and such Shareholders may receive more than one type of Form 1099 depending on type of CIRI income received. These include:

- Form 1099-MISC (resource revenue payments and prizes). Resource revenue—or 7(j)—payments derive from resource revenue sharing obligations among the 12 Alaska Native regional corporations, as required by the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA). Shareholders who owned at-large stock on April 1, 2022, received a $11.6955 per at-large share (or $1,169.55 per 100 shares) 7(j) payment from CIRI in 2022. Additionally, if you inherited at-large stock in 2022 and received an estate settlement payment, a portion of that

Resource revenue payments are reported in Box 3 – Other Income on a Form 1099-MISC. ANCSA requires that resource revenue amounts distributed in connection with CIRI village-class stock be paid to the associated village; therefore, CIRI does not report these payments as individual Shareholder income.

Shareholder prizes are also reported in Box 3 – Other Income on a Form 1099-MISC.

- Form 1099-DIV (estate payments). If you inherited CIRI shares in 2022, any held dividends paid by CIRI in connection with the inherited shares will be reported in Boxes 1a –

Ordinary Dividends and 1b – Qualified Dividends on Form 1099-DIV. If you have held your shares for less than one year, please consult your tax advisor regarding the proper treatment of qualified dividends.

Please note that it is your responsibility to accurately report your CIRI income on your tax returns; CIRI cannot provide tax advice. The proper IRS forms and schedules to use when completing individual tax returns may vary depending on the types of CIRI payments received. Shareholders are encouraged to consult with a tax advisor regarding individual circumstances and applicable federal and state tax requirements.

SHAREHOLDER SPOTLIGHT: FRED S. ELVSAAS JR.

Growing up steeped in Alaska Native politics has given CIRI Shareholder Fred S. Elvsaas Jr. (Aleut) a unique perspective on the history, culture, challenges and opportunities facing Alaska Native regional and village corporations.

Fred's grandfather, Fred H. Elvsaas, served on the CIRI Board of Directors and helped establish Seldovia Native Association (SNA) in the early 1970s. "Anyone who knew my grandfather would tell you that Alaska Native politics was all he talked about," Fred chuckled. "We lived in Seldovia, but our family set-net site is near the Kustatan River. He had a captive audience when we were out setnetting, so by the time I was 18, I kind of learned, well, I mean, a lot of what there was to know about Alaska Native politics and ANCSA (Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act) and everything else."

One of seven villages in the Cook Inlet region, Seldovia is accessible only by a 15-minute flight or a 45-minute ferry ride from Homer. Its fewer than 300 residents still largely rely on commercial fishing for their livelihood. Fred lived in Seldovia until he was 18, describing the tight-knit community as "a kid's paradise."

"There was always something going on, between the boats, crab fishing and halibut fishing and cod fishing, and then taking off and going salmon fishing in the summer," Fred recalled. "It was always busy, especially if you were a kid; you could always get a job somewhere doing something. You'd fish king salmon in the slough and longline halibut in the bay, and then take off first thing in the spring and head to fish camp and come home right before school started."

"Growing up, I definitely identified as an Alaska Native person," Fred continued. "In Seldovia, that's just the culture—subsistence, sharing what you have with Elders, seasonal work and living in harmony with your environment."

After moving to Anchorage, Fred began working for VECO Corp., an oil pipeline and construction company. In 2009, he hired on with NANA, the Alaska Native regional corporation for northwest Alaska. He started out as an estimator, rising through the ranks to project manager and then general manager. Since 2016, he has been at the helm of NANA Construction.

"There's never a dull moment, and growing up in a commercial-fishing family, I've always kind of operated at this intense pace," Fred said. "We do rural housing fabrication. We build oil field process modules, pipe racks, schools, 350-man camps. We do turnarounds at mines and oil and gas facilities. We've got work at the refineries down on the Kenai Peninsula, offshore oil and gas—things like that. It's a 24/7 job, and we've grown a lot. We're running 365 days a year, day and night shifts at all these different mines and facilities."

Fred credits his "awesome wife," CIRI Descendant Brittany A. Elvsaas (Athabaskan), for taking on the bulk of family life and responsibilities so he can devote his time to work. And together, they are committed to instilling pride in Alaska Native culture and heritage in their four children, who range in age from 22 to 6. "With us, we live it," he said. "When salmon fishing opens, we're already over on the west side of Cook Inlet at our fish camp. You're on the beach; your entire life revolves around the weather. And as far as seal hunting and commercial fishing and doing those types of things, those are things that we try to instill in our kids and get out there and go and do."

Fred's mother, siblings, aunts and uncles still reside in Seldovia, and he makes quarterly trips from his home in the Matanuska-Susitna

Valley to visit family and attend meetings of SNA, for which he serves as board vice president.

Fred said SNA has experienced "phenomenal growth" since he joined the board 20 years ago. Current business operations include the Dimond Center Hotel in Anchorage and a tour group based in Palmer, Alaska. The corporation also recently wrapped up the process of identifying and making an inventory of carbon offset credits for future sales. "Fifteen, 20 years ago, we didn't have any money," Fred said. "And now we're looking at setting up permanent funds and getting things to where we can pay dividends in perpetuity. It's been a fun 20 years—a fruitful journey from where we started to where we are now."

Fred inherited CIRI shares from his grandfather, Fred H., as well as an "uncle," Reuben B. Ingram, who also lived in Seldovia. "At the end of the day, you're proud of your regional corporation and the things they do, and same thing with your village corporation," Fred said. "People hear you're a CIRI Shareholder and you belong to a highly respected company, and it's a good thing—something we can all be proud of."

Fred is also a current member of CIRI's Participation Committees, which seeks to increase two-way communication between the corporation and its Shareholders and Descendants.

By dividing the land into village and regional corporate holdings, ANCSA planted the seeds of a conflict within the Native community over the capital versus subsistence value of land. Over the last decade, CIRI's management has made it a high priority to find opportunities that fall within our joint best interests and to work cooperatively with the Cook Inlet region village corporations. In February 2013, CIRI conveyed more than 200,000 acres of 12(b) lands to CIRI village corporations, ending the long process to finally convey the major land entitlements to CIRI villages.

Fred acknowledges the past—"the way the land-selection process worked under ANCSA, it's almost like it was designed to create conflict between the regional and village corporations"—while remaining hopeful about the future. "What I've seen over the last 10 years is closer alignment," he said. "It's noticeable how much the relationships have improved. People are getting together in the same room, having conversations, making business deals. I think the younger generation has realized we're all in this together. We're focused on opportunity rather than conflict."

SHAREHOLDERS WITH RETURNED MAIL

The following CIRI Shareholders do not have a current mailing address on record. When CIRI mail is returned as undeliverable, the distributions are held and the Shareholder does not qualify to participate in any prize drawings until the address is updated. Shareholders with Qenek portal accounts may update their addresses online. Alternatively, Shareholders may visit CIRI's website or call Shareholder Relations at (907) 263-5191 or (800) 764-2474 for address change forms and information. For a complete and current list of missing Shareholders, visit ciri.com/missing-shareholders.
