NEW PERMITTING PROCESS FOR ACCESS TO CIRI LANDS

The Kenai River supports Alaska’s largest fisheries for king, red and silver salmon. Beginning in the Chugach Mountains, the 80-mile waterway flows west, winding through the Kenai National Wildlife Refuge and Skilak Lake and ending where it meets the waters of Cook Inlet on the Kenai Peninsula. Approximately 7 percent of the banks of the lower and middle Kenai River are held as private property by CIRI. These streambanks have been treated as public lands for many years, largely due to trespassers’ lack of knowledge of property ownership along the river, too few signs notifying the public of land-ownership status (and the illegal removal of existing signs) and inadequate enforcement procedures.

Residents along the Kenai River, as well as officials from Alaska State Parks, various trade and industry groups and law enforcement, have shared CIRI’s concerns over the impacts of trespassing. In 2017, CIRI began granting members of the Kenai River Professional Guide Association (KRPGA) non-exclusive permits to access CIRI lands along the river for the purpose of sportfishing. CIRI’s lands as a heritage asset. And we recognize that CIRI shareholders and countless others who have relied on the Kenai River for generations – returning to the same places year after year, valuing the land and using it to feed their families and teaching their children to also be stewards of the land. That’s a big reason we decided to keep the banks open. Also, if people are going to use land anyway, it’s best to have regulations in place.”

Another level of protection is being rolled out this summer. The Kenai River Sportfishing Association (KRSA), a nonprofit that advocates for fisheries conservation in Alaska, will assist CIRI in issuing permits to members of the general public who wish to access CIRI lands along the Kenai River for the purpose of sportfishing.

“In years past, CIRI took permit requests through its website. Last year, we fielded more than 200 requests for folks wanting access to CIRI land along the Kenai River, which ate up way too much time at the 2017 NYO. The kick was good,” he recalled of the moment he leaped into the air for what would be his final NYO weekend.

“The kick was good,” he recalled of the moment he leaped into the air for what would be his final NYO weekend.

When 15-year-old CIRI descendant Judah Eason regarded the sealskin ball hanging above him at a height of 102 inches during the one-foot high kick at this year’s Native Youth Olympics (NYO), he flashed back to exactly one year ago, when the pain of a bone breaking in half halted his NYO weekend.

“The kick was good,” he recalled of the moment he leaped into the air for what would be his final time at the 2017 NYO.

His knee had been bothering him in previous kicks, but the Ninilchik team athlete chalked it up to a knee problem he’d had for ages—no big deal. “But on my way down, I knew I was going to land straight because I’m used to landing straight when my knees hurts,” Judah went on. “So my muscles contracted and kept my knee straight, and when I landed, the tendon pulled the bone in half. Then I went down, basically through the ground. It was pretty painful when it initially happened. But it was more scary to have 300 people staring at me!”

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT
Sophie Minich, CIRI President and Chief Executive Officer

We had a great turnout for CIRI’s 45th Annual Meeting of Shareholders, held June 2 in Soldotna, Alaska. And yes, you read that correctly – 2018 marked the 45th anniversary of our Annual Meeting! So much has changed since that first meeting, held in 1973 just two years after the passage of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA).

In 1973, the CIRI Board of Directors had filed a lawsuit against the U.S. Secretary of the Interior. Much of the land prescribed for CIRI’s selection pursuant to ANCSA had already been given away to the State of Alaska under the state’s entitlement, and CIRI was left with acres of mountainous and remote lands from which to make its selections. From 1973 through 1975, CIRI would wage its battle in the courts. Seeking to achieve a fair land settlement, CIRI also entered into negotiations with the U.S. Department of the Interior, the U.S. Congress and, eventually, the State of Alaska. In 1976, President Gerald Ford would sign legislation that laid out provisions for land selection between CIRI and the state and federal governments, under which CIRI would receive its full entitlement.

Annual Meetings give us the opportunity to reflect on the past, strategize our future, visit with old friends and meet new ones. I am grateful for the shareholders who took the time to participate in this year’s Annual Meeting in person, particularly those who drove or flew many miles to attend.

Preliminary results of the election for CIRI Directors indicate the following shareholders will serve a three-year term ending in 2021. Congratulations to Douglas Fifer, Jeffrey Gonnason, Ted Krato Sr., Michelle Lindersmith and Louis Nagy Jr. To all of the shareholders who voted their proxies and participated in the election – thank you. As shareholders, electing directors is the most important duty that we perform each year to help guide the direction of CIRI and ensure the long-term strength of our corporation. The support received for the candidates and the positive feedback from shareholders signals that CIRI is moving in the right direction – balancing a healthy dividend policy with the need to invest and grow the company and provide sustainable benefits for current and future shareholders.

When CIRI was created, it began with $36 million in cash and its land entitlements. Since that time, it has paid $1.3 billion to shareholders and recently achieved $1 billion in assets. From private equities to energy development, every investment and business opportunity CIRI pursues has one primary goal: to promote the economic well-being of our shareholders, now and into the future. 2017 was a year of action to take advantage of new opportunities, and it was one of CIRI’s most profitable in a decade. The challenge ahead is to continue the upward momentum and grow in a way that continues to add value to shareholders’ equity into the future. We can achieve this by identifying new opportunities and harnessing the strength CIRI has established both internally and with our expert partners. Our talented team of employees, the wisdom and guidance of our Board of Directors and the participation and support of our shareholders is how we get there.

Warm regards,

Sophie Minich

Dolly Hills

Ten years.

The amount of time it takes to train a surgeon.

The amount of time it takes an employee to qualify for Social Security.

The amount of time it took the U.S. to capture Osama bin Laden after the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

A lot can, and does, happen over the course of a decade. And it can be a very long time to wait when you’re searching for answers.

Dolly Hills’ son, Richard “Rick” Hills, disappeared February 2004 near the town of Sterling, Alaska. His remains were discovered in 2005, but were incorrectly identified as those of another missing local man, also named Richard. It wasn’t until September 2014 that the remains would be correctly identified as those belonging to Rick Hills and returned to his family.

“Those ten years were a very painful, horrendous journey of grief,” Dolly said. “I was very bonded with Rick. I could accept that he wasn’t here, but I didn’t have closure, so I couldn’t let go. I did everything to keep my sanity. I tried to eat, but I couldn’t eat. I tried to sleep, but I couldn’t sleep. I felt like I had to live outside my body because inside my body was so painful. Every minute was like an hour, every hour a day, every day a week.”

Dolly found relief through prayer and journaling. And eventually, she wrote a book. “As I wrote, I thought, this might help other parents who have lost children or whose children are missing. My story is ultimately about love, faith, trust, hope, forgiveness and never giving up.”

An original CIRI shareholder of Yup’ik descent, Dolly never set out to be a writer. She began life as a mother of two sons,.”

Dolly’s family lived a subsistence lifestyle, with occasional treats from the small village store. She attended a one-room schoolhouse through sixth grade, after which time her family relocated to the Kenai Peninsula. Dolly married her husband, Tom, and raised her two sons in the town of Soldotna. She worked in the retail, banking and fishing industries, and was employed as an office manager during most of her career.

Dolly describes the faith that helped see her through her son’s disappearance as “more of a Christian faith,” but says she was raised around tribal beliefs and it’s something she’s always appreciated. “For instance,” Dolly explained, “you listened to your Elders like they were your parents. And you didn’t waste anything. We saved things like twine and wrapping paper; no food ever went to waste. You don’t think anything of it when you’ve living it, but when you tell your grandkids about what your life was like, their eyes get really big!”

Dolly’s book, “A Mother’s Tears for A Missing Son: A Challenging Spiritual Experience,” was published in October 2017. She began promoting the book this spring.

Dolly describes her son, who was 35 years old at the time of his disappearance, as “very sociable, likeable and nice looking. He had a great big smile and was very free spirited. He’d give the shift off his back to help anyone.” Though the cause of Rick’s death was never confirmed, “we do have a sense of closure now,” Dolly said. “You never forget, but time helps. Life is better today.”

The Atlantic did an excellent in-depth investigative piece on the disappearance of Rick Hills in its April 2016 issue. The article, “In the Land of Missing Persons,” can be accessed online for free.

“A Mother’s Tears for a Missing Son” is available for purchase at local Alaska bookstores and on Amazon.com. For more information, visit amotherstears.net. 📖

BROCCOLI-BACON SALAD

Adapted from a recipe featured on Julia’s Album, www.juliasalbum.com.

As the author wrote about this recipe, “If you like bacon, you’ll love this refreshing salad – it’s a great way to consume bacon in a healthier way. You can add lots of salad dressing (all of what’s indicated in the recipe below) or you can add just half – let your taste dictate whether you want the salad to be more or less creamy.”

START TO FINISH: 20 minutes

SERVINGS: 6

INGREDIENTS:

1 head broccoli, leaves trimmed
6-8 slices cooked bacon, crumbled, or 1/3 to 1/2 cup real bacon bits
1/2 cup chopped red onion
6-8 slices cooked bacon, crumbled, or 1/3 to 1/2 cup real bacon bits
1/4 cup dried cranberries
8 ounces sharp cheddar, shredded or cut into very small chunks
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1/4 cup sugar
Salt and pepper, to taste

DIRECTIONS:

1. Cut the broccoli into bite-size pieces. Wash and dry on paper towels.
2. Place broccoli, bacon, onions, raisins, cranberries and cheddar in a large bowl.
3. To make the dressing, in a separate small mixing bowl, combine mayonnaise, vinegar and sugar. Whisk until combined.
4. Pour dressing over salad and toss to combine.
5. For best taste, refrigerate salad two hours before serving.

There are a limited number of permits available on a first come, first served basis. There is no application fee and permits are issued free of charge. Post-activity reports are required to be submitted for every person with a CIRI land use permit, and may be submitted online at www.ciri.com/permitting.
The 2018 Annual Meeting of CIRI Shareholders provided more than an opportunity to hear the results of the previous year’s financial performance and vote to elect the members of the CIRI Board of Directors – attendees visited with friends old and new, enjoyed a delicious lunch prepared by the Hearth Eatery and Catering, which is owned by CIRI shareholder Virginia Fraase, were treated to a performance by the Kenaitze Indian Tribe’s Jabila’ina Dance Group and shared their ideas for how to make CIRI a successful company with CIRI Directors, staff and members of the CIRI Shareholder Participation Committees.

The event was held Saturday, June 2 at the Soldotna Regional Sports Complex in Soldotna, Alaska. The 2019 Annual Meeting will be in Puyallup, Wash. To best accommodate its geographically diverse shareholder population, CIRI rotates its Annual Meetings between Anchorage, Kenai and the Pacific Northwest – the regions with the highest concentrations of CIRI shareholders.

The 2018 Annual Meeting of CIRI Shareholders included cash prize drawings for shareholders who submitted a valid proxy for any proxyholder or candidate by the proxy deadline (2 p.m. on May 24), or who registered to vote in person at the Annual Meeting. The winners, whose names are listed below, were randomly chosen in drawings conducted by Sramek Hightower, the independent accounting firm retained to assist with vote tabulation.

2018 ELECTION RESULTS

Preliminary results (i.e., subject to final certification by the Inspector of Election) indicate that CIRI shareholders elected five individuals to the CIRI Board of Directors at the company’s 2018 Annual Meeting, held June 2 in Soldotna, Alaska.

These individuals include four incumbent directors and one new director: Douglas W. Fifer, Jeffrey A. Gonnason, Ted S. Kroto Sr. and Louis “Lou” Nagy Jr. were re-elected, and Michelle B. Lindersmith was elected to serve a three-year term. The Board met after the Annual Meeting and elected the following Board officers:

Chair — Thomas P. Huhndorf
Vice Chair — Douglas W. Fifer
Secretary — Jeffrey A. Gonnason
Treasurer — Michael R. Boling
Assistant Secretary — Louis “Lou” Nagy Jr.
Assistant Treasurer — Margaret “Margie” Brown

Once certified by the Inspector of Election, final results, including the results of the advisory resolutions introduced from the floor at the Annual Meeting, will be published.

SCPS A VITAL LINK BETWEEN CIRI SHAREHOLDERS AND THE CORPORATION
Since 1995, CIRI’s Shareholder Participation Committees (SCPs) have helped increase two-way communication between CIRI and its shareholders, identify issues of immediate and long-term importance to shareholders and descendants, and educate shareholders and descendants on the corporation’s mission, business operations, corporate policies and other matters.
The SCPs are comprised of three subcommittees – the Anchorage Committee, the Alaska Committee, made up of shareholders who live in Alaska outside of Anchorage; and the Lower 48 and Hawaii Committee. There are youth representative positions as well, selected via an application process from CIRI shareholders or confirmed descendants 13 to 17 years of age.
The SCPs have risen in importance and prominence over the years, becoming a vital link between shareholders and the corporation. In fact, the 2017 CIRI Annual Report highlighted the SCPs and some of the current and former shareholder and descendant members who have contributed to their success. To date, seven former SCP members have gone on to serve on the CIRI Board of Directors.

Last year, SCP youth representatives were brainstorming new ways that CIRI might connect with shareholders and descendants 15 to 19 years of age. In response, CIRI shareholder Autumn Olson, who was interning with CIRI at the time, worked with Darla Graham, CIRI’s Shareholder Programs manager, to develop the CIRI C3 Experience, an overnight camp focused on culture, college prep and careers. The inaugural camp will be held this summer.

According to Graham, “The perspective SCP members are able to offer is invaluable when it comes to developing programs for shareholders and descendants. Being able to bounce ideas off of them and hear their feedback ensures we are developing programs that are impactful and meaningful. The reassurance when a youth SCP member says ‘I’d attend that program (CIRI C3 Experience) in a heartbeat’ and watching them become ambassadors for CIRI’s programs is inspirational and rewarding beyond measure.”

Each of the three committees has nine adult voting shareholders, who serve three-year terms, as well as a youth representative, who serves a one-year term. The SCPs meet in June and October of each year, CIRI will soon update its website with photos and bios of each of its current members. CIRI annually solicits applications from eligible shareholders who wish to serve as SCP members. The current-year deadline to apply is now closed, and new members will be announced when the selection process is complete.

We remind shareholders and confirmed descendants 13 to 17 years of age that SCP youth representative applications are due Wednesday, Aug. 8, 2018. This is a great opportunity for young people who wish to become more involved in their corporation! For more information, see the article about CIRI youth opportunities on page 7.

SCPS A VITAL LINK BETWEEN CIRI SHAREHOLDERS AND THE CORPORATION
Since 1995, CIRI’s Shareholder Participation Committees (SCPs) have helped increase two-way communication between CIRI and its shareholders, identify issues of immediate and long-term importance to shareholders and descendants, and educate shareholders and descendants on the corporation’s mission, business operations, corporate policies and other matters.
The SCPs are comprised of three subcommittees – the Anchorage Committee, the Alaska Committee, made up of shareholders who live in Alaska outside of Anchorage; and the Lower 48 and Hawaii Committee. There are youth representative positions as well, selected via an application process from CIRI shareholders or confirmed descendants 13 to 17 years of age.
The SCPs have risen in importance and prominence over the years, becoming a vital link between shareholders and the corporation. In fact, the 2017 CIRI Annual Report highlighted the SCPs and some of the current and former shareholder and descendant members who have contributed to their success. To date, seven former SCP members have gone on to serve on the CIRI Board of Directors.

Last year, SCP youth representatives were brainstorming new ways that CIRI might connect with shareholders and descendants 15 to 19 years of age. In response, CIRI shareholder Autumn Olson, who was interning with CIRI at the time, worked with Darla Graham, CIRI’s Shareholder Programs manager, to develop the CIRI C3 Experience, an overnight camp focused on culture, college prep and careers. The inaugural camp will be held this summer.

According to Graham, “The perspective SCP members are able to offer is invaluable when it comes to developing programs for shareholders and descendants. Being able to bounce ideas off of them and hear their feedback ensures we are developing programs that are impactful and meaningful. The reassurance when a youth SCP member says ‘I’d attend that program (CIRI C3 Experience) in a heartbeat’ and watching them become ambassadors for CIRI’s programs is inspirational and rewarding beyond measure.”

Each of the three committees has nine adult voting shareholders, who serve three-year terms, as well as a youth representative, who serves a one-year term. The SCPs meet in June and October of each year, CIRI will soon update its website with photos and bios of each of its current members. CIRI annually solicits applications from eligible shareholders who wish to serve as SCP members. The current-year deadline to apply is now closed, and new members will be announced when the selection process is complete.

We remind shareholders and confirmed descendants 13 to 17 years of age that SCP youth representative applications are due Wednesday, Aug. 8, 2018. This is a great opportunity for young people who wish to become more involved in their corporation! For more information, see the article about CIRI youth opportunities on page 7.

CIRI Youth OPPORTUNITIES

SUBMISSIONS DUE BY 5 P.M. ON AUG. 8, 2018

Each year, CIRI engages young shareholders and descendants with a variety of youth programs, including the opportunity to serve as a youth representative on the Shareholder Participation Committee (SPC) and an annual Youth Art Contest. Visit www.ciri.com/youth to learn about other youth programs and opportunities.

SPC Youth Representatives
Teens have an opportunity to apply for one of three youth representative positions on the Shareholder Participation Committee (SPC). SPC youth representatives provide input to the SPC as it works with the corporation on issues or activities identified by the SPCs, the shareholders or the corporation.

To be eligible to serve, youth must be a CIRI shareholder (or a confirmed, registered CIRI descendant) 13 to 17 years of age. Interested youth must submit:

1. An application;
2. A letter of introduction;
3. A short essay explaining why s/he wants to serve as a youth representative and what s/he knows about her/his Alaska Native heritage and CIRI; and Submissions must be received by CIRI by 5 p.m. Alaska Daylight Time on Wednesday, Aug. 8, 2018, to be considered. The application can be downloaded and printed at www.ciri.com and is also available from Shareholder Relations. Information on how to register as a CIRI descendant is also available on the CIRI website and from Shareholder Relations.

Complete packets received by the Aug. 8 deadline will be reviewed by a selection committee and those chosen will be contacted. Youth representatives participate in a two-day October SPC meeting, which is when new SPC members — brought on after the Annual Meeting of Shareholders — receive general information about CIRI and its affiliated nonprofit organizations, as well as a one-day meeting in June.

CIRI believes it will be useful for the youth representatives to hear this information and to have an opportunity to meet CIRI Board members and executive staff. In turn, CIRI leadership hopes to learn more about the issues important to the next generation of shareholders.

Youth Art Contest
To be entered in the 2018 Youth Art Contest, interested CIRI shareholders or descendants aged 5 to 12 are invited to submit original artwork interpreting the theme “I have FUN learning how to…” and a completed entry form by 5 p.m. Alaska Daylight Time on Wednesday, Aug. 8, 2018. Winning entries will be displayed at the CIRI and The CIRI Foundation Friendship Potlatches this fall.

Entry forms can be downloaded and printed at www.ciri.com and are also available from Shareholder Relations.

James Thorne received first place in the ages 5 to 8 category in the 2017 Youth Art Contest.
